Agenda

  - May to Sep – develop the NAF and make it publicly available in September along with the registration platform and complementary online resources
  - Week of 6th Sept through end of Sept 21 – registration platform with online resources
  - Nov 21 – data update report
  - Sept to Dec – we will look to facilitate registration of new commitments and process these
  - 2022 – report on commitments made in year of action

2. Overview of GNR plans in 2021

- Key stakeholders identified the need to have a more unified global accountability framework for nutrition that extends N4G commitments. N4G commitments are still central to our work, especially this year. There will be a joint statement from the two summit organizers (FSS | N4G) coming out, further highlighting the need for a global accountability framework on nutrition
- For the N4G summit, GNR has been formally endorsed. Platform can be used to register and facilitate the assessment/ processing of any (including N4G) nutrition commitment
- Midterm review to be conducted over Aug-Sept and there will be an opportunity to feed into this. This will inform the longer-term planning for the GNR
- Nutrition accountability framework: series of online resources that define the underlying characteristics of the framework along with the commitment registration platform
- Purpose of resources is to introduce the Nutrition Accountability Framework and support the registration of nutrition commitments. These online resources will serve as the basis for the GNR Report on the Year of Action

3. Nutrition Accountability Framework

- To be released in September 2021 along with the platform

Classification

- Initial iteration to be released in September and aim to refine/expand this based on feedback and the evidence-base

Qualification of commitments

- Commitments will be assessed on SMARTness (key requirement for N4G commitments, but any nutrition commitment that is part of the Framework)
- The goal is to provide support to commitment-maker to revise and fine-tune the formulation of their commitments to ensure these are SMART
- The content of the registration form ensures we can assess the SMARTness of commitments

Pilot testing of registration form

- 12 interviews conducted as part of the pilot testing with key stakeholders
- Most feedback has been about the clarity of the questions and the possibility of providing examples. This is straightforward to address and already had plans to include examples of SMART commitments
- More substantial feedback from 3-4 respondents has been about translation. Currently all content is in English. We are looking at providing translation, but this does require additional resources
- Respondents also requested whether there would be access to the form before starting to complete and perhaps fill it in offline, or have the ability to save and retrieve for completion at a later time. This is also being addressed

Nutrition Accountability Platform

- By September the aim is to have an online registration platform up and running. This will also act as a starting database of commitments

Preliminary discussions on the Report on the Year of Action

- Based on the online documents published online, refined further based on feedback received
- Process, validate and analyse commitments registered through the platform
- Showcase successful stories
- Highlight gaps in action
- To be published in 2022

Technical Advisory Working Group

- Leverage the technical input of existing other accountability mechanisms
- Terms of reference finalised and now looking at how to operationalise

ACTION: draft of online resources to be shared with IEG members for feedback
